

Hello <Customer's Name>,

I trust you are doing well./Thank you for your email.

The issue that we have come across on this case has already been reported with out Product team and they are working intently to provide a suitable fix for this issue. As of today, we do not have an ETA available for the fix./ Provided that there are no last-minute quality issues discovered, they are projecting that the fix of the issue could be available by/with <date/version/schedule of release>.

I will keep you updated on the progress of our fix and let you know if there are any changes to their projected release.

Please feel free to reach out if you have any questions. I look forward to hearing from you.
